Danforth Prince, publisher of celebrity biographies, joins Bearidise!

Danforth Prince is a publisher of Hollywood celebrity biographies with an emphasis on the sexually colorful, including Marlon Brando, Humphrey Bogart, Katherine Hepburn, and Howard Hughes.

He has just released "Jacko", the Michael Jackson story told through publically available material that has been beautifully integrated into a 525 page book with numerous photos and hundreds of quotes and insights into a superstar's lifestyle. Danforth has generously donated a copy of "Jacko" to Bearidise, as well as his "Guide to Gay and Lesbian Film", and "Hollywood's Silent Closet", which I actually saw Don reading for 30 minutes before he had to go!

Danforth is also a regular contributor to the famous Frommer Travel Guides, and as a result of a most enthusiastic visit to Bearidise, will be offering a travel guide style entry for us to publish on the website! He has some Bear friends in the Harrisburg area who are well connected to a large group of people and he is encouraging a group of them to head up to Bearidise!

No one can say where this relationship between Danforth Prince and I is heading, but I will note that after reading The Key of David on the website he made arrangements to come to Bearidise in person from his digs in Manhattan, and additional discussions, meetings, and trips are planned.

Danforth is currently in London at a book show promoting "Jacko". You can check out his website, which has links to video clips of him, at <http://www.bloodmoonproductions.com>

The books are available at his website or at Amazon.
